DENVER over New England by 1

OPENING LINES:
PATRIOTS -3 / 44

It should come as no surprise that this year's Championship Round quartet share one common denominator – each owns a Top 10 ranked defense. Given the fact that 40 of the 49 Super Bowl winners possessed Top 10 defenses, this year's list of teams headed to Super Bowl 50 Super Bowl appears to be just what history demands. Surprisingly, all four teams playing this weekend were outyarded in their victories last week. New England's problem is they have been outstatted in each of its last three contests, making them a 'leaking oil' road favorite. And because road teams need to be hitting on all cylinders at this stage of the season, we don't see the defending Super Bowl champs making a repeat visit. For openers, defending champions are just 4-9 SU and 5-8 ATS away in the playoffs, including 0-5 SUATS if they scored more than 24 points in their previous game. However, the well-oiled machine comes to the Patriots' defense, noting that same-season revenge favorites are 7-2 SUATS in Championship Round games since 1990. And Tom Brady is 11-5 SU and 9-6-1 ATS in head-to-head games with Peyton Manning.

Bill Belichick spoils it, though, with his 8-11 SUATS career mark versus Denver, including 1-6 SUATS away off a SUATS win. And for those of you trembling in your boots at the thought of stepping in front of the Hoodie when he is out to avenge a same-season loss, remember this PLAYBOOK Exclusive: Belichick is 13-10 SU and 16-7 ATS in his career in same-season revengers, but only 2-4 SUATS outside the division, and 3-4 SUATS in the postseason. In fact, the Pats are 0-3 SUATS in their last three postseason games playing with same-season revenge, with the last being an 8-point home favorite choke job against Baltimore in 2012. New England is 1-3 SUATS in its last four away games this season, and only 3-7 SU and 4-6 ATS in its last 10 playoff road games. We realize Peyton Manning looks like a shell of his former self, but Denver is 5-1 SUATS as a home dog off back-to-back wins, and 6-1 SUATS against Belichick in games in which his troops arrive off a SUATS win. Besides, if Brock Osweiler can find a way to engineer a win over New England, so, too, can Manning in this shining moment... the last home game of his NFL career.

Arizona over CAROLINA by 3

OPENING LINES:
PANTHERS -3 / 47

For the first time in NFL history, two Heisman Trophy winning QB's meet in the playoffs. And as always, there are plenty of Good, Bad and Ugly numbers to be found in tonight's NFC title game showdown. Before we get to those, first our thoughts on the each of these two teams. Carolina has been on a run for the ages, going 21-2 in its last twenty-three games. Our biggest concern is only four of those opponents owned a winning record at the time of the game, with a 15-0 mark against losing opposition. Yes, they managed to send Arizona packing in the Wild Card Round of the playoffs last season, but that was against a completely decimated Cardinal club down to its 4th-string QB. And like New England, the other favorite on this weekend's card, the Panthers have been outgained in each of their last three games, making them another 'leaking oil' favorite. Meanwhile, Arizona is now healthy and anxious to pick up its 6th away win in a row (7-1 SU as visitors this season). To head coach Bruce Arians, the gap between a healthy QB Carson Palmer and journeyman Ryan Lindley, Arizona's QB in last year's playoff meeting with the Panthers, is nearly as wide as the Grand Canyon. And speaking of Arians, his 17-4 SUATS career record in games versus opponents off a SUATS win flows with tantalizing tighteners, including: 6-0 SUATS versus .700 or greater opponents, and 6-1 SU and 7-0 ATS as a dog of 3.5 or less points. And there's this matter of revenge, which in the Arians household is akin to kidnapping a family member, as he is a vengeance-seeking 4-0 SUATS in personal losses he has suffered as a head coach when his avenging troops are greater than .800 on the season. The bad news for the Redbirds is the well-oiled machine notes that teams arriving to the Championship Round off a Divisional Round overtime victory are 2-7 ATS when facing a foe off a SUATS win since 1977. Still, with teams 13-26-3 ATS as chalk – including 10-10 SU and 3-16-1 ATS from Game Ten out (1-2 SU and 0-2-1 ATS in the playoffs) – after facing Pete Carroll's Seattle Seahawks, we're reminded that when Seattle captured Super Bowl XLVIII two years ago it marked the first time since 1999 that a No. 1 NFC seed has won it all. Sorry Cam, Superman's kryptonite comes a-calling this weekend.
