THIS WEEK IN BASKETBALL – JANUARY 14-20, 2023

ATTENTION PLAYBOOK BASKETBALL NEWSLETTER SUBSCRIBERS

Due to various circumstances beyond our control – such as a reliable basketball schedule that covers more than just three days' worth of games – we'll be presenting a "meat and potatoes" version of our weekly basketball newsletter until the start of the NCAA Tournament. Each week we'll provide write-ups and analysis on the games that stand out the most, including three Best Bet releases on each of the College, NBA, and NBA Over/Under cards. For margins on all other games on the weekly card, we suggest you refer to Kenny White's Power Ratings, along with Victor King's NBA rankings, in determining sides on the remaining portion of the daily hoops' lineup. We are sorry for any inconvenience, but rest assured the isolated contests we feature contain write-ups on the games that would normally appear in the regular version of the PLAYBOOK Basketball Newsletter. Thanks for your continued support.

4★ BEST BET

Kentucky over TENNESSEE by 1

It's tough to decide which college basketball team fared worst in last week's play, but the Kentucky Wildcats were right at the top of the list. Consider: On Saturday, UK went on the road to battle a highly-rated Alabama squad and limped back to Lexington after being destroyed by the Tide, 78-52 – the program's worst loss in years. But the icing on the cake for Kentucky's week of shame was not applied until the following Tuesday. In one of the most shocking setbacks of head coach John Calipari's 14-year run with the Wildcats, 8-8 South Carolina – the same South Carolina that lost by 43 in its previous outing against Tennessee – upset UK, 71-68, at Rupp Arena, snapping the Wildcats' 28-game home win streak, which had been the longest active streak in the SEC. "Are fans mad? They should be," Calipari said during his postgame press conference. "We lost at home. We don't lose at home. And we were down 10 at the half. I expect fans to be mad." Enter No. 5 Tennessee, 14-2 and climbing, riding a 13-1 SU streak in its last 14 outings. Rick Barnes and company also booted Kentucky from last season's SEC tourney in the semifinal round as the No. 3 seed. The high-flying Vols are tied atop the SEC with Alabama thanks to a crew that knows how to clean the glass (No. 6 in the nation in team rebounding) and dish the ball (No. 11 in team assists), making this a difficult task for Coach Cal's kids. However, UT is just 1-7 ATS as a host in this series when the Wildcats do not sport an .850 or better win percentage, as well as 1-4 ATS as a favorite versus UK. Calipari looked haggard after the Gamecocks defeat, so we expect him to come up with a game plan that can keep his team close today. In fact, this is where Kentucky's head coach is at his best, dressing up as a road dog of more than 3 points in games in which his troops own a sub .640 win percentage as his 14-5 ATS career mark confirms. Like Jerry Dandridge said in "Fright Night", it doesn't work if you don't have faith – starting with THE CLINCHER: Tennessee is 6-11 ATS this series when not entering off back-to-back losses, including 0-4 ATS when Kentucky has revenge.

TCU over Kansas State by 11

Another team looking to rebound from a bad week is TCU. Jamie Dixon's Horned Frogs were riding a runaway train 11-game win streak before hosting Iowa State on Saturday, and the Cyclones outlasted the Frogs in a 69-67 thriller. Then on Monday, the TCU football team was eviscerated by Georgia in the CFP National Championship, a 65-7 rout that had to cast a pall over the entire university in Fort Worth. Wednesday saw the Horned Frogs visit Texas, where they jumped out to a big lead and held a double-digit edge throughout most of the contest but faded in the final minutes to drop a 79-75 decision to the Longhorns. Egad. Now Dixon and his No. 17 squad look to cool down red-hot No. 11 Kansas State, winners of nine straight games, including two in overtime, while scoring 80 or more points in five of those contests. Yes, the Manhattan Wildcats are one of the biggest surprises on the college hardwood this season, picked to finish last in the Big 12 but instead enter tied atop the conference. Kudos to first-year head coach Jerome Tang, who inherited a 14-17 outfit that lost in the opening round of the Big 12 Tournament, failing to advance to postseason play. Today's game, however, looks like a spot where a heavy dose of reality and a return to the norm have been known to barge through the door. That's because the 5-returning starter Horned Frogs have frequently rung the ATS register when coming off a loss, going 7-1 ATS of late. The Froggies have also been squashed twice – the last time as chalk – when hosting the Wildcats and will be anxious to make amends. And guess who KSU has up next after this one? That's right, the hated Jayhawks of Kansas, a team the Wildcats have not beaten since January 17, 1994. Sounds like the perfect storm to us, and we'll take advantage by hopping over to the pay window after a big Horned Frogs win here.

LA TECH over Ala-Birmingham by 8

Huge game for each of these CUSA rivals who are currently tied for third place in the conference standings. The good news for UAB is the Blazers have been breathing fire under third-year head coach Andy Kennedy, finishing 27-8 last season and 61-20 overall since he arrived in B'ham. The bad news is UAB owned a 12-2 record before dropping its last three contests on the scoreboard, all agonizingly close, as the Blazers lost to Western Kentucky by 2 points, to Florida International by 3 points, and to Florida Atlantic by 2 points. If that's not discouraging enough, the WOM (well-oiled machine) informs us that UAB is lost in a 0-9-1 ATS slide in its previous ten away games, plus the dragons have suffered through a 1-5 SUATS failure in their last six games at Ruston. Yikes. Meanwhile, Louisiana Tech's 10-7 start should come as no surprise as former head coach Eric Konkol left after three straight 20-win seasons to take the Tulsa job, and Talvin Hester, an assistant under Konkol, took over with just two starters returning this year. However, the Bulldogs have sprung to life lately, winning two of their last three, while losing to North Texas by just 2 points. They're also 5-0 ATS at home in this series when not coming off consecutive wins, and there is no doubt the Techsters still painfully recall losing to UAB in the finals of last season's CUSA tourney. With the Bulldogs 6-1 SU at home and the Blazers 0-3 away this campaign, there's only one way to look here.

UPSET GAME OF THE WEEK UPSET

St. John's over CONNECTICUT by 2

The Huskies burst out of the gate this season with a 14-0 start, and currently own the best overall record of all teams in the Big East at 15-3. But No. 6 UConn has lost three of its last four contests to drop to 4-3 in conference play and needs to stop the bleeding. So do the hemorrhaging Red Storm, whose 16-point win over Butler on Tuesday snapped a 5-game losing skid. Now 12-6 St. John's takes to the road to face Dan Hurley's Huskies in a clash between two suddenly desperate squads. The Johnnies are just one game back of 4th place Huskies in the Big East race and their strong 6-0-1 ATS performance in the last seven meetings with Connecticut tells us if they don't pull the outright upset, they'll stay close enough to cash a ticket. The sled dogs are coming off an 82-76 loss at Marquette on Wednesday, which puts them in a bad role here with UConn just 3-8 ATS in the series when coming off a loss, including 0-4 ATS when going into revenge. Turns out Connecticut took out Johnny twice last season, so we figure now is the time they pay the price. St. John's looked like a different team in its 16-point bashing of the Bulldogs, outshooting Butler 53% to 44% and nailing 82% from the free throw line, as well as winning the rebound battle. Can't say for sure the Red Storm have turned the corner, but we'll ride them with the generous points here. We spell this game U-P-S-E-T.

MICHIGAN STATE over Purdue by 13

Uh oh. There was a moment during Michigan State's recent 59-53 home win over rival Michigan when Spartans head coach Tom Izzo was caught on camera with an expression that said: "I think we've got something special here, but I don't want to tip off anyone too soon." With Sparty nowhere to be seen in the latest AP Top 25 rankings, it looks like Izzo might be able to ambush an opponent or two before the league catches on. He followed up the win over the Wolverines by covering as road chalk versus Wisconsin, then took a 7-game win skein into their Friday the 13th clash with Illinois (check result). Purdue was also scheduled to play on this most unlucky day but got to stay home and probably notch another win over outmanned Nebraska. The Boilermakers boasted a 15-1 record at press time, and should both teams bag those Friday victories, tonight's game will be a battle for the top spot in the conference between Big Ten co-leaders. The problem for the visitors is a disappointing 6-10 ATS effort this season, including 3-10 ATS when not taking points. Then there's the scab from Michigan State's loss to Purdue in the semifinals of the Big Ten tourney last season. Sparty just so happens to own an 8-1 SU and 7-2 ATS record with conference tourney revenge when the Spartans own an .800 or fewer record, including 3-0 SUATS versus .750 or greater opponents. They're also 4-0 SUATS with LTKO revenge with a win percentage of less than .777. However, as always, we save the best for last with THE CLINCHER: See this week's AWESOME ANGLE on page 2. FYI: MSU is 100% outright in this role.

SETON HALL over Connecticut by 8

No matter the outcome of UConn's Saturday battle with St. John's, we still prefer the Pirates here tonight. Yes, despite standing just 10-8 at press time, Seton Hall has reeled off decisive wins in three of its last four contests at press time, beating Georgetown, Butler and St. Johns. Besides being the nottie instead of the hottie in tonight's matchup, UConn owns a money-burning 0-7 ATS mark of late as Big East road chalk when coming off a conference contest, so we're picking on them again. More fuel to the fire comes via the fact that the 21-win Pirates were pillaged, 62-52, in the first round of the Big East tourney by the Huskies last season. Fortunately, the Kids in the Hall have always been reliable as conference home dogs with revenge, going 14-8-1 ATS, including 9-3 ATS versus greater than .750 foes. And if that stat doesn't catch your fancy, Seton Hall is 3-0 SUATS as a conference dog when seeking revenge from a conference tournament loss. Finally, we wrap things up with THE CLINCHER: Home teams are 5-0 SUATS with conference tournament revenge against UConn.

Thursday, January 19

LONG BEACH ST over Fullerton St by 10

We realize the Beach Boys are a shadow of last year's 20-win squad that lost to Fullerton State as a No. 1 seed in the Big West conference tourney, but that type of revenge simply can't be ignored – especially against a beatable foe, and especially when both teams are hovering around break-even territory. The WOM agrees, noting that the 49ers are 22-11 ATS at home in this series, including 16-1 ATS when the Titans enter off a SUATS win. You'll need to check the result from their home game against Cal State Bakersfield three days ago, but keep in mind that CS Fullerton is currently on a 0-4 SUATS skid away in conference games after facing the boys from Bakersfield. The Titans are also just 1-6 SUATS away versus sub .540 Big West foes. Toss in the fact that Long Beach State is winning home games this season by an average of 12 PPG, and we expect the 49ers to strike some SU and ATS gold tonight.

TORONTO over Atlanta by 16

After a blasé 7-8 start to the season, Toronto hit the skids going 3-11 thereafter before the Raptors finally shook out of their doldrums with wins and covers in each of their previous three games as they enter this all-important contest. They'll ride that momentum into this clash in an ideal scheduling spot, bringing along a 7-1 SUATS record with them in home games when coming off back-to-back home contests, while the visiting Hawks enter off a same-season revenger last night in Indiana knowing they are just 6-18 SU and 8-16 ATS post Pacers since 2016. Better yet, Atlanta is staring dead ahead to a triple revenge affair with Miami while bringing a long-term 54-80-3 ATS mark into this fray in games before Heat hookups, while Toronto is looking to get even from a 124-122 loss at Atlanta during the opening month of the season. And like a gift under the Christmas tree that has yet to be opened, we put a bow on this present with THE CLINCHER: Atlanta is 1-7 SUATS away with no rest against Eastern Conference foes seeking same-season revenge.

Sunday, January 15

Houston over LA CLIPPERS by 1

While this game looks hard to swallow on the surface, it should go down like a Grey Goose on the rocks. Consider: The lowly Rockets have already taken it on the chin three times this season in this series, including a 16-point beat down in their latest gathering. That sets the table as Houston brings a lofty 40-25 ATS log away in this series, including 32-15 ATS in game in which the paper Clips sport a .610 or less win percentage. The ICBMs are also 16-6 ATS away from Game 22 out when seeking same-season revenge from a loss of 15-plus points, including 8-0 ATS when they ride in with a sub .270 win percentage. Why would that be, you ask? Simple. Opponents, more often than not, tend to play down to their level. And speaking of which, our Well-Oiled Machine notes the Clippers are just 4-8 ATS versus foes seeking same-season triple revenge that are playing with revenge from a most recent defeat of 15 or more points. That makes this a nice and smooth take.

SAN ANTONIO over Brooklyn by 6

It's Pop-O-Top time again as we take a deep dive into our Greg Popovich history book tonight. For openers, his Spurs were splattered to Kingdom Come in a 139-103 loss in Brooklyn the day after New Year's. They went on a 5-0 ATS win skein at home after Christmas this season and have cashed in 6 of 9 non-conference contests this campaign. In addition, Popovich is 25-12-1 ATS in games when looking to avenge a same season defeat of more than 25 points, including 16-6-1 ATS at home. With the Nets starting a 5-game road trek and just 1-5 ATS versus sub .333 foes this season, it's time to pop open a serving of cold revenge tonight.

Cleveland over MEMPHIS by 8

Meet the upstart team this season in the young and deeply talented Cavaliers. The addition of Donovan Mitchell to a roster that has been loading up on talent the past three seasons is finally coming into fruition while being orchestrated by J.B. Bickerstaff. The former Memphis Grizzlies head coach would like nothing better than to leave a calling card tonight. The baby Cavs arrive with a double revenge chip on their shoulder from a pair of losses they incurred last year knowing they are 17-13 SU and 20-10 ATS in this series, including 12-4 ATS away. The Grizz return home after facing Phoenix, with the Lakers on deck (only 7-10 SUATS before facing Los Angeles). However, it's actually the Suns who pave the way for this as we refer to THE CLINCHER: Memphis is 4-15 SUATS at home after facing Phoenix when facing .570 or greater foes, including 1-8 SUATS when the Grizzlies do not sport a losing record.

UTAH over Brooklyn by 16

We used to see these famous "airport" plays a lot more frequently in the past but it appears the league has wised up and scheduled fewer of them. Now that they're back we're like a hooker healed up after a hysterectomy, more than anxious to get back in action. For openers, the Jazz are 66-39-1 ATS as home when not favored by more than 10 points against non-rest non-conference foes, and make an appearance in this week's INCREDIBLE STAT on page 2. They are also 20-7 SU and 19-8 ATS of late in this series, including 6-0 ATS when the Nets arrive with no zzz's. On the other side of the court, Brooklyn checks 0-2 SUATS this season without rest in non-conference clashes while coming off a double revenge tilt at Phoenix last night. And before we spring into action and prepare to lay whatever is being offered (wink, wink), we'll turn things over to THE CLINCHER: Utah is 11-0 SU and 10-1 ATS at home in this series when the Nets owns a win percentage of less than .548.
